Description

Here at Avis Budget Group we're more than just rentals—although over 70 years of experience and 11,000 locations in 180 countries has taught us a thing or two about that. We're shaping the future of the mobility industry with our innovative, customer-focused solutions. Our globally recognized brands - Avis, Budget, Budget Truck and Zipcar - connect people to more. This means more convenience, more options and more time on the road for our customers. But we also connect our employees to more: opportunities, benefits, support, collaboration and most importantly—power to change the future. Sound your speed? Come join our family.

Job Summary

This role will be responsible for driving decisions and executing price strategies that maximize organization profitability for their assigned locations. This individual would be responsible for developing and implementing pricing processes and strategies for assigned rental locations and monitor results on a consistent basis in a role that prepares the analyst for advancement through multiple levels within and outside of the Revenue Management department.

We are looking for a self-driven, motivated, and intellectually curious individual to join our team.

What you'll do:

- Ensure correct application of pricing strategies into applicable systems and databases
- Identify and examine markets, geographic regions, competitor pricing, and overall business trends in relation to pricing
- Produce and distribute location performance and benchmark reports on a monthly basis
- Forecast location rental demand and overall trends
- Identify and test targeted promotions to align with the organization's pricing strategies
- Interact with internal business stakeholders at multiple levels of management
- Utilize various analytical tools (Excel, Cognos, Tableau) to help make informed business decisions
- Prepare ad-hoc requests and analyses as requested by upper management
